

A Coach's Guide to A Great Experience

Soccer, like all other youth sports is meant to provide your children with an opportunity to have fun in a group environment. Learning how to love and enjoy an activity like Soccer is the key to progress. The role of the coach is critical in this process.

Here are some basic tips on how a Coach can have a positive influence on the development of his or her players:

Set the tone with the parents:

- Think of your team as a class and the practice as a classroom.
- At the classes, the only teachers are the coaches.
- Parents need to be supportive of the children by supporting you as the teacher. There cannot be one or two coaches at practice and twenty on game day.
- Too many people directing and yelling from the sidelines only confuses the players and is detrimental to a positive learning environment.
- Address these issues early with all of the adults and challenge them to adhere to your team rules to benefit the players.
- Hold a team meeting before the start of the season to review rules, expectations for player and team support by parents, sideline behavior, respect of referees and coaches and respect of opposing players

Lead by Example:

- In many ways, the team will reflect your individual personality traits. If you are calm, the team will be calm. If you are positive, so will the players.
- If you are negative or reactionary, the team will act similarly. Be aware of your influence on the children.

Focus on growth and not the game results:

- The most important measuring device for a coach is in the team's ability to progress as both individuals and as a team collectively.
- If there is a continued focus on the development and progression of the team and children, the wins and results will take of themselves.

Let your players dictate their level of competition:

- Create opportunities where players can dictate their willingness to compete.
- Build time into practice where players can play without constant, structure and instruction.

Be respectful to the referees:

- As the lead educator in the game, players and their parents will respond to the way you deal with referees.
- Take time to address the entire group on this subject and hold yourself to a high standard.
- Many referees at the youth level are learning and need positive reinforcement to maintain their interest in the sport.

COACH'S PLEDGE

I pledge to teach and guide the players. I will always recognize my responsibility to, and influence on, both the players and parents. I will be a positive force. I promise as coach to remember I am responsible for setting and maintaining the tempo and behavior patterns of my team. I will focus on development and let the results take care of themselves. I will be a factor on children continuing their soccer experience for many years, instead of being a reason for them dropping out of the sport.

WAYS TO PRAISE YOUR PLAYER

Great try
You must have been practicing
I'm proud of the way you worked today
Tremendous
I think you've got it
You outdid yourself today
Great counter attack
I'm impressed
That's the best you've ever done
You are very good at that
Great timing on your run
I knew you could do it
I'm very proud of you
Nothing can stop you now
I've never seen anyone do it better
You really make coaching fun
Thanks a million
Awesome
Good trap
You've got what it takes
Wow
Perfect 1st touch control
Great sportsmanship
You're getting better every day
You make it look easy
Perfect pass
Good thinking
Great save
Exactly right

You remembered
You're learning fast
Nice defensive move
Hurray for you
That's quite an improvement
Congratulations
Good tackle
Well done
Great decision
That's the best ever
Perfect execution
Great goal
That's the way to support your teammates
Keep up the good work
Excellent move
You haven't missed a thing
Great vision on that pass
Fantastic
Super effort
Nice give and go
Magnificent
Excellent ball